

INTERNATIONAL CAMP STAFF PROGRAM

How the Program Works

Each year the Boy Scouts of America invites Scout leaders around the world, through their Scout associations, to participate in the International Camp Staff Program. Both male and female Scouters, ages 18 through 30, may apply.

Scouting associations recruit, interview, and certify prospective international camp counselors. This procedure helps assure the Boy Scouts of America that every counselor has the qualifications outlined in the application, that their activities in the Scouting movement include leadership experience, and that they have good Scouting character. Their application and medical form are forwarded to the Boy Scouts of America. After carefully reviewing these forms, if approval is given, the counselors are notified. The application is then sent to a participating council. When a counselor has been accepted by a council, the council is instructed to contact the counselor.

Counselors usually arrive in the United States via a commercial airliner from their home country. They may travel to the camp's contact city, designated by the camp, by plane, train, or bus.

Each council is notified about the travel plan for its counselor as soon as it is received by the International Department.

Objectives of the Program

The International Camp Staff program is operated by the Boy Scouts of America for camp program enrichment. It provides an opportunity for local councils throughout America to invite qualified Scouters from other countries to be a part of their summer camp and Cub Scout day camp programs.

The International Camp Staff program is recognized as a cultural exchange program by the U.S. State Department. It gives to our membership and Scouters from other countries an international exchange of mutual benefit. Its aim is to allow boys in councils throughout America to come into personal contact with experienced Scout leaders from another part of the globe, and learn, firsthand, not only about their Scouting program, but also about their country, its culture and customs. The program is an in-depth international Scouting experience for boys in every council.

Your Council and the Program

Any council participating in the International Camp Staff program should realize that its purpose is not to recruit ordinary camp personnel. The values of the program are more far-reaching than merely filling a staff assignment. Overseas leaders, although competent in basic Scouting program skills, are not necessarily familiar with the same type of skills practiced in our camps.

The great service rendered by the international camp counselors is that they bring to camp the flavor of international Scouting and give significance to the world brotherhood ideal. WE SHOULD NOT LOOK UPON THESE MEN AND WOMEN AS A SOLUTION TO OUR CAMP STAFF VACANCIES. The role each must play in camp must be flexible and focused upon the basic international objectives.

Experience has shown that maximum satisfaction for both the camp administrators and the international camp counselor is obtained when the counselor's activities are related to boy and leader contacts that directly assist unit program activities.

Camp assignments should include events focused upon the international Scouting theme.

The International Camp Staff program has enriched the lives of thousands of boys for more than 20 years with a unique Scouting experience. The counselors not only bring valuable input to our program but return to their countries with new ideas and skills learned from us.

Opportunities for the counselor to appear as a guest at local civic and service organizations within the council area would serve to highlight the meaning of the world Scouting concept.

Note: Limited Touring Now Allowed

After completing the program (the period defined on the form DS-2019), the Immigration and Naturalization Service allows participants a 30-day travel period commonly referred to as the "grace period." During this 30-day grace period, participants are no longer on J-1 visa status and under the jurisdiction of the INS. They may no longer continue exchange activities, nor may they work. Although participants may travel in the United States, it is important that they leave the U.S. on or before the last day they are authorized to be in the U.S. Staying beyond the period authorized by the Department of Homeland Security is a violation of U.S. immigration laws and may cause them to be ineligible for a visa in the future for return travel to the United States.

Your Council Can Participate By:

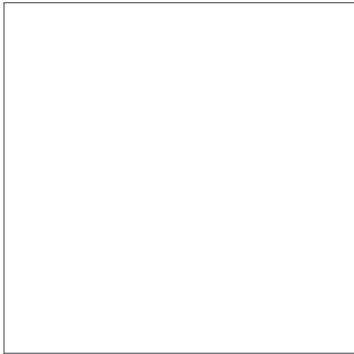

1. Providing for it in your budget.
2. Having an organization or business sponsor a counselor.
3. Having your council's international committee sponsor a counselor.

VISA RESTRICTIONS

International camp counselors travel to the United States on a J-1 exchange visitor's visa. International camp counselors who travel to the United States on any other type of visa are not approved to participate in the International Camp Staff Program.
